“Splendiferous, Fun-Loving Christmas Holidays in Historic Savannah”

SAVANNAH GEORGIA [July 20, 2007] “Jesters and fireflies and a garden manor, Oh My!” In dreamy Savannah, the Azalea Inn and Gardens mixes up elements of classic nostalgia with whimsical imagination for a “Splendiferous Christmas Holiday.”

This historic mansion inn charts a road less taken with its lighthearted mantra, “Where Fun Blooms!”(sm). Evolving around a theme of fun loving, easy-going leisure, the romantic bed and breakfast inn delivers up the ultimate temptations for winter 2007, including “Christmas with the Innkeepers,” a holiday feast serving up gourmand southern cuisine dashed with lighthearted, family-style joviality.

“Travelers are squeezing into a mini-vacation as many cultural adventures and personal relaxation as can be mustered within a few days. Today’s power vacation or romantic vacation is typically two to three days, in contrast to the two-week vacation of my youth,” advises Teresa Jacobson, innkeeper proprietor at Azalea Inn and Gardens in the historic district. “I believe it’s our job to provide not only our warm and inviting lodging, but also to point to the best of Savannah’s extraordinary city as well,” conveys the vivacious inn owner.

“My husband, Mike, and I are the corporate executive couple who loves fun socialization, including wine carefully paired with imaginative cuisine. Azalea Inn and Gardens affords us a fun environment for socializing informally, southern style.”

By delivering the kind of extraordinary experience that the Jacobson’s enjoy, the popular bed and breakfast inn experience from Azalea Inn and Gardens has evolved to include food, hospitality, storytelling, history, architecture, shopping and nature. The results are heaps of welcomed, easy-going leisure in the walking-resort-feeling historic district, plus rave-review cuisine for an unimaginable, affordable, surprisingly rich holiday in Savannah.

Customarily, the Inn's concierge services recommend off-the-beaten path highlights of the Savannah historic district and selective soft adventures beyond -- the places where guests will miss the crowds and discover instead the less-hurried, slower-paced Savannah, Georgia, as it really is -- "Splendiferous!"
